英語 B

次の英文を読み、後の問いに答えよ。

Long ago in India, a gardener's son fell in love with the king's only daughter, the princess. The princess also loved the boy. Of course, the two never had a chance to speak to each other, but they always looked at each other and sometimes gave each other a little smile when they thought nobody else was looking at them. They both knew that loving each other was wrong. But they loved each other anyway.

One bright spring day, the two ( 1 ) lovers finally had a chance to ( 2 ) to each other. The princess was ( 3 ) her room, looking out of the ( 4 ). The gardener's son was working near ( 5 ) castle walls. The boy moved under ( 6 ) princess's window just as she looked ( 7 ). The boy stood up, and the ( 8 ) were close. The boy said ( 9 ) the princess, "I love you." The ( 10 ) replied, "I love you, too." But ( 11 ) was their mistake, because just when ( 12 ) spoke, her bedroom door opened and ( 13 ) father, the king, came into her ( 14 ). When he heard her words, he ( 15 ) to the window and saw the ( 16 ) son still standing outside and smiling.

( 17 ) this country, any man who made ( 18 ) king angry or who did something ( 19 ) bad was given the same ( 20 ) choice. The king had a large stadium ( 21 ) his castle. Every guilty man was ( 22 ) to the center of the stadium, where ( 23 ) were two large doors. The guilty ( 24 ) then had to choose one of the ( 25 ) and open it. Behind one door there ( 26 ) always a beautiful woman, and behind ( 27 ) other door there was always a ( 28 ) tiger. The doors were very thick, ( 29 ) there was no way to hear ( 30 ) tiger. Only the king knew which ( 31 ) opened to the woman and which ( 32 ) opened to the tiger.

If the guilty ( 33 ) opened the door with the woman, ( 34 ) was married to her that same ( 35 ) and became a free man again. ( 36 ) he opened the door with the ( 37 ), he was eaten.

The boy's love ( 38 ) the princess made the king very ( 39 ). The princess's love for this gardener's ( 40 ) made the king even angrier. "Take this boy to the stadium now," the king told his men. But as he was leaving, the boy heard the princess say, "Trust me."

The boy became sad because he knew that if he chose the door with the beautiful woman, he would be married to her right away and never have a chance to marry anybody else. And if he chose the door with the tiger, he would die.

While the boy was waiting in the stadium, the princess was very busy. She learned which door opened to the tiger and which one opened to the woman. But what should she tell the boy she loved so much? She didn't know how to decide. If he opened the door to the woman, how could she watch him get married to someone else? But oh no! How could she send him to death from the tiger's teeth?

By morning, she knew what to do. She was sitting next to her father in the stadium, waiting for the boy to come out. Then the boy came out, walked directly over to the king, and bowed. As he stood up, he quickly looked at the princess. She sat quietly, but at the same time, she quickly moved her right hand.

Without waiting or thinking, the gardener's son walked to the door on the right side and opened it.

ディクテーション

My hometown is similar to most small towns in America. For example, there are many big trees. So even in the summer, the streets are nice and cool. Most of the houses are made of wood or brick and many of them are very old. But most people take very good care of their old houses, so they are comfortable to live in. When I was a child, my favorite place in my hometown was the main shopping street. There were many kinds of shops there and my favorite one was the pet shop. That's because I love animals.
